- They form something of a tacit cnc agreement that Xeathr can have her way with Maud as long if she stops drinking. It is mostly but not entirely successful

St. Felicity's

St. Felicity's Abbey (and Distillery)

- Founded in 1910 by Benedictine nuns moving from Ireland
- ~90 nuns
- Short on cash, the nuns turned to running moonshine in the 20s
- Becomes legit distillery after end of prohibition. Employees are a mix of nuns and lay, drives local economy. “Mother Mary James’s Irish Whiskey”
- Sells alcohol to Big Pot City residents (fake, based on Cookeville), gets a big boost in notoriety and expands to national sales after building of Midhill Dam
- Large and expensive church built in 1984 by courting rich donors, one of which was Maud’s grandfather, becomes religious tourism destination
- Collaborative cow farming with local lay populace
- Located in Erwinville, TN, Greene County (fake)
 - Near Midhill Lake (based on Center Hill Lake), at the foot of the mountains
 - Population 5000
 - Catholic haven in middle of Bible Belt
 - Wet city in small county, surrounded by dry counties
 - 25 minutes west of Big Pot City, larger city that’s a railway hub (helps export the whiskey)
 - Hour east of Nashville, hour 45 north of Chattanooga, two hours west of Knoxville
 - Based on Smithville and Lynchburg, TN; Cullman and Hanceville, AL

St. Felicity's Catholic Boarding School

- Founded in 1915 to serve the expanding local Catholic population that had begun to move to Erwinville
- Became a boarding school in 1949
- One of the cheapest boarding schools in the United States, price competitive with non-boarding Catholic schools in Nashville due to liquor subsidization
- ~250 students, mix of local and boarding
- Mix of nun and lay teachers, mostly nuns
- School has slight party culture as a result of Abbey's entanglement with alcohol and proximity to the lake
